Sylvain Boudreau has been an avid promotor of infrastructure management best practices for more than 20 years – for the past 10 years as utilities coordinator for the City of Gatineau, and prior to that, as a technical advisor for the National Research Council of Canada where he helped create the National Guide to Sustainable Municipal Infrastructure, also called the INFRA-Guide

Sylvain vigorously promotes the sound management of utilities networks in the public right-of-way and is active in several municipal organizations; as a member of the Center of Expertise and Research in Urban Infrastructures (CERIU) and Federation of Canadian Municipalities (FCM) Rights of Way Committee and as Chair of the Utilities Table of the Union of Quebec Municipalities (UMQ).
