

Tim Charron

Tim Charron is a Canadian lawyer practising in Vancouver, British Columbia. He serves as counsel in the practice areas of labour relations and employment; clientele has included privately held and public corporations, governments, crown corporations and trade unions; counsel for both provincially and federally regulated clientele.

He has made appearances before courts, labour relations and employment tribunals across Canada, including the BC Supreme Court, the BC, Alberta and Ontario Labour Relations Boards, the Federal Court of Appeal and the Canadian Industrial Relations Board; appearances before Human Rights and Workers' Compensation tribunals.

Tim currently represents several independent trade unions including, for the past 37 years, the Christian Labour Association of Canada, which is a predominant union representing employees of many of BC and Alberta's major construction general contractors, and pipeline, mining and transportation employers.

Tim holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from McGill University, Dalhousie University and a Bachelor of Laws from Dalhousie University.

Tim has organized fund raising activities and provided legal services to a number of community and charitable organizations over the years and is currently assisting the John Howard Society.

He designed, built, operated and, earlier this year, sold the 360-seat Steel Toad Brewpub and brewery in Olympic Village.
