

Nicole Forrest

Nicole has 20 years of communications experience, and today sits as digital communications manager at TransCanada. Nicole led the company's digital approach during the Amherst incident and continues to manage the company's overall digital communications strategy – from social media and storytelling to video production and web content